

Publisher's Profile

Kevin McGuinness, formerly a lawyer with the Ontario Attorney General office and now a procurement consultant, speaks with Summit about his ongoing career as an author and the challenges he sees ahead for public procurement.

by Summit staff

Software as a Service

No longer do you have to own and update the latest software to access it. SaaS is a solution whose time is now.

by Duncan Campbell

Sourcing technology is simplified

An Alberta town and municipal district happily find that their technology upgrade and customer service go hand-in-hand.

by CDW Canada

Maximizing capital investments for public private projects

Spend management software is becoming a valuable and popular tool.

by Keith M. O'Leary

The allocation of risk and cost in construction

The challenges of construction procurement are multiple. What is the cost; what is the trade-off; and what is acceptable?

by Greg Baynton

opinions

sustainable procurement

Comestibles and ethical, professional and corporate responsibility

Author Larry Berglund discusses the role played not just by corporations, but by the public sector.

municipal matters

P3, PFI & AFP

Bauld and McGuinness explain and help make sense of the terminology and types of public-private partnering that is available to you for capital asset purchases.

- New West Partnership Trade Agreement
- Six programs accredited by the CSCSC's National Accreditation Program
- CN's supply chain wins award

THE 2010

LEADERSHIP IN PUBLIC PROCUREMENT

AWARDS

Call for NOMINATIONS

DEADLINE
JUNE 30, 2010

Share your expertise with your colleagues.

Nominate your team or someone that you know.

Summit magazine in collaboration with the Canadian Public Procurement Council presents two awards for your consideration

LEADERSHIP IN PUBLIC PROCUREMENT AWARD

LEADERSHIP IN GREEN PROCUREMENT AWARD

Nomination forms are available now at www.summitconnects.com